“ Terry Wayne Autry was my daddy. He was the father of 2 girls. He had 5 grandsons and 1 granddaughter and 1 great grandson and a very special neice and her children. He was proceeded in death by his father and a brother. He is survived not only by his children but by his mother and 2 sisters.

I loved my daddy very much and we did have a strange relationship but we understood it even noone else did. It didn't concern them anyway. I let to much time pass without talking to my daddy and then it was to late. When I was told that he was in very poor health I tried and I tried to find him but unfortunately I was unable to do so. I found out March the 5th of his passihg a month earlier. I hope that he knew how special he truly was to me and how much i loved part of me left this world with him

It never mattered how much time had passed when we talked it was always as if no time at all had passed. We would just laugh and cut up. He was hillarious and knowing that never again will I be so blessed as to get to hear the greatest laugh that I have ever known gives me such an aching pain I can not describe. I am grateful for the times that we spent together no matter how few far and in between they were. He was then, is now and will always be Terry Wayne Autry aka my daddy. I love you and miss you every day. You will not be forgotten. You will forever live in my heart. May you Rest in Peace.

I finally read his obituary after 4 months and they asked for people to share memories of your deceased loved ones. One of the hardest things I think I have ever had to do. I had to finally face it head on and read it. No more denial he is truly gone.
